

Survival Kit

what you need to stay culturally satiated this month.

• By Elizabeth Dehn skincare line, serum $48, face spray $28
Because the completely natural and totally fabulous skincare products from Twin Cities beauty expert Elizabeth Dehn, creator of the beautybets.com blog, are the perfect way to repair your pores after that terrible sunburn (you know better!), elizabethdehn.com

• Stuck on AM 7: Stuck on Tape cassette, Radio K
Because this limited edition, cassette-only release of in-studio performances from Dooctree, Roma di Luna, Retribution Gospel Choir, Leisure Birds and more, is a decidedly lo-fi love letter to local music. The bad news: If you didn't get up at the crack of dawn to stand in line during last April's Record Store Day at the Electric

Fetus, you didn't snag a copy. The good news: You can visit metromag.com for a chance to win one. radiok.org

• Topography-themed art by Marnie Karger, $5–80
Because this local artist's paper-cut pieces of Lake Minnetonka, Lake Superior and other Minnesota landmarks will make you appreciate the 10,000 lakes you take for granted all through the summer. etsy.com/shop/crafterall

• Through No Fault of My Own, $12.95 at fine local bookstores
Because a look at 1920s Summit Avenue socialite Coco Irvines teenage diary, uncovered from the Minnesota Historical Society archives, is F. Scott Fitzgerald meets Gossip Girl—in a good way. shop.mnhs.org

• Worm Factory 360 vermiculture kit, $113 at Mother Earth Gardens
Because red wiggler worms will put your composting on the fast track. This vermiculture kit from Mother Earth Gardens (worms sold separately) is an eco-friendly—and kinda fun—way to rid the earth of at least a half-pound of food scraps, paper, leaves and coffee grounds every day. motherarthgarden.com
